Reasons For Allowance

1. The method as claimed wherein determining the equipment having a probability of having processed the first failed group greater than a probability of having processed the first qualified group (claim 1) is not disclosed, suggested, or made obvious by the prior art of record.

Cheong et al. (US 6,055,463) discloses a control system and method for testing semiconductor integrated circuit determining if a final test is completed and having failure analysis (Fig. 3). However, Cheong et al. does not disclose determining the equipment having a probability of having processed the first failed group greater than a probability of having processed the first qualified group.
